

Experiments in text categorization using state of the art machine learning technology.

Freddy Wetjen and Svein Arne Brygfjeld

The Norwegian national library has done a series of experiments to categorize and classify texts of both scientific and non-scientific nature. These tests have led to an understanding of the possibilities and limitations of the technology. Practical results will be shown.